The Benefits of Service

Through participation in service students have amazing opportunities to serve the needs of their communities. By participating in service experiences students can improve their community, make a difference in someone's life, develop leadership skills, enhance their resumes, network with community members, gain exposure to new career fields, and learn about internship and job opportunities. Service experiences can also help students learn about social issues, area non-profit agencies, about the community, as well as allow them the opportunities to demonstrate commitment to a cause/belief, and empower them to be an agent for change.

At the University of West Florida, Volunteer UWF! helps facilitate a number of programs for students that will allow them to participate in meaningful service experiences with area non-profit organizations. These programs include both individual and group volunteerism and community service, service-learning and field study courses, BreakAway: Alternative Spring Break, and the community work study program. To learn how UWF students and student organizations can be a part of serving the UWF community and surrounding communities, stop by Volunteer UWF! in Bldg. 19 or email volunteer@uwf.edu.

Did you know??? Students who complete 20 or more service hours in a semester can have those hours included on their official UWF transcripts!**
**Hours must be recorded on Volunteer UWF! Timesheets, turned in on time (NLT Monday of Deadweek) and student must be registered in JasonQuest****

Job Description:

Hi, my name is Sam and I am looking for a personal assistant, someone to be my arms and legs! I am a 23 year old quadriplegic, paralyzed from the neck down. Currently, I am attending UWF as a public relations major. I enjoy doing homework, talking to friends, being read to, playing on the computer and going to see movies. With such a busy schedule my mom is unable to help with all of my activities and still get her work done. The job consists of helping me do homework, helping me do my chores around the house and helping with some of my personal care. That is where you come in!

Sam

This position has a lot to offer individuals in any subject area but would be especially advantageous and give great work experience for those interested in the nursing, physical therapy, respiratory or health related fields.
