Course Focus: Practical Acting

In relation to our "Skill Series" that we've been presenting the past couple of weeks, a new course has sprung up on the books of the University catalog that addresses these types of skills that help an employee become a great employee. The course is called "Practical Acting" and it's being offered this summer. They say that Mathematics is a part of our daily life; well they should start saying that "Acting" is also a part of our daily life. Many people think that the word 'acting' connotes lying or pretending and while acting can be a performance of a fantastical reality; there are skills that every actor practices and hones in order to become great at his or her craft. This class will teach those skills inherent in actors that everyday occupations and career fields can benefit from.

Practical Acting is a course designed for all the students who have also wanted to take an Acting class, but either couldn't fit it into their schedule, or couldn't convince themselves that the information from the class would be beneficial to them. Public Speaking, Teamwork, Small Group Communication, and Problem Solving are all valuable "life skills" that are vital to all students, and those are among the skills that students will develop during this unique course. Taught by Assistant Professor Kevin P. Kern, a recent arrival from Los Angeles, and a member of the Screen Actor's Guild, Actors Equity Association, and a veteran of live Theatre, Film, and TV Commercials, this course will meet on Monday and Wednesday evenings during Summer Term 'C'. For more information contact kkern@uwf.edu.

Water Cooler Joke of the Week

It's funny how...

At work, you have to share a toilet with everyone else in the office. In prison, you get your own.
