The Bachelor of Arts in Economics is typically of interest to students with strong academic credentials and a desire to make a difference by helping to shape policy in a wide range of areas in society. Economics majors will develop conceptual and analytical skills for making policy-oriented decisions based on analysis of fundamental resource allocation issues. Economists work in a broad range of policy areas and address questions such as: What is the best way to fight environmental pollution?; What is the appropriate role of government in the economy?; What rules should govern trade among nations?; What is appropriate economic policy for developing nations?; What are the effects of rising interest rates?; What are the effects on labor markets of aging populations and increasing immigration?; What are the effects of tax cuts, budget deficits, and welfare policies on the overall economy?; and many, many others. Economists may address fundamental policy issues such as these and others within narrower fields such as health care, agriculture, education, crime, politics, urban and regional development, law, history, energy, and the environment, among many others. The Economics degree program is structured to provide the opportunity for students to earn Minor degrees in many of these specialized fields.

Most economists are concerned with practical applications of economic policy, and work for a wide variety of public, private, and governmental organizations. The job market for individuals with both undergraduate and graduate degrees in economics is robust and tends to be less cyclical than the market for students with many other degrees. The Bachelor of Arts in Economics provides a comprehensive foundation for students who wish to obtain a graduate degree in economics and is also recognized as excellent preparation for graduate programs such as Law or the MBA.

Students are urged to consult with faculty members associated with the Economics program and its recommended minors for detailed information about the program's academic learning outcomes and to develop an appropriate course of study for their intended career path.
